Moral education – sociological analysis

Abstract: In the article, the author analyzes the concept of moral education, with particular emphasis on pro-dignity education (education for dignity values). Moral education – considered from a sociological point of view – leads to a point of personality development at which an individual decides about the moral value of his or her actions, about what is right or wrong, honest or unfair, based on the principles, goals and objectives commonly recognized in a given culture. moral ideals. Such moral development is a long-term and multi-conditioned process, extending deep into adult life. Full moral autonomy, which is a sign of maturity, means making independent decisions and actions under one's own responsibility in the light of universal ethical principles.

Key words: human dignity, ethical values, moral education, dignity education

Municipal strategy as a signpost in creating a local inclusive environment for people with disabilities

Abstract: The aim of the article is to consider and present the idea of strategic management and the role of communal strategies as determinants of activities creating the basis for the local environment, enabling social inclusion of people with disabilities. The article consists of three parts. The first one – based on the literature on the subject – describes the procedure of strategic management practiced by the smallest local government units (JST), which municipalities belong to. The considerations were conducted in the perspective of taking into account the assumptions of the local social policy. The second part of the study contains the characteristics of two types of strategic documents, important from the point of view of the social situation of people with disabilities: Municipal Development Strategies and Strategies for Solving Social Problems. The essence of the study is the third part, based on a qualitative analysis of the content related to people with disabilities included in the Development Strategy and Strategy for Solving Social Problems of the city of Cieszyn. As a result of the analysis the activities that may constitute the basis for creating a local inclusive environment for people with disabilities have been shown.
